.3AB The rule forming .3A begins above e-, with a vertical stroke, making it evident that line .3B a-wa-ra-ka-na ... pa-ra-we-, is to be read before .3A; the last sign of .3A, however, is intended simply to complete the last word of .3B, as pa-ra-we-'ɳa', but was crossed after by the rule; pa-ra-we 20 (PTT2nd) is rejected, but pa-ra-we-'jo' and do-we-jo-qe are possible, for in both cases space is limited, and distortion inevitable, but neither approximates the form of jo- in line .2, and cf. do-we-ɳa on On 300.1; KA: possibly 100; possibly erasure at end of .3B

Index of documents classified according to hands, stylus groups, and classes

Groupings by stylus established by Bennett are retained in this Index for facilitating cautious and precise study beyond the sets recorded in the text. New scribal hands recently proposed by Olivier (PTT2nd) have also been considered and occasionally included, and proposals by Godart (2021; see introduction, p. xxix n. 40) have been considered as well.

Classes and stylus groups are long-established and important scientific tools for making clear that certain standards of evidence are met or not met in the scholarly process of identifying tablets as belonging securely or not to a particular tablet writer. Including tablets that have too few truly diagnostic signs and insufficient collateral evidence (in terms of formatting, formulas, or general or specific subject matter) contaminates the general paleographical study of hands, stylus groups and classes, and the reconstruction of record-keeping practices in Late Bronze Age Messenia. In cases where there is some degree of doubt about the assignment of a tablet or sealing or label to a class or hand, the document number is set in italics.
